Q2 2025 Fund Commentary

Market Commentary

The second quarter of 2025 began with the U.S. administration's announcement of new tariffs, which led to a sharp decline in riskier assets. Investment-grade credit spreads (the difference in yield between bonds of similar maturity but different credit ratings) rose and U.S. equities fell. However, spreads subsequently fell and U.S. equities rose as tariffs were soon paused. Investors continued to watch U.S. policy announcements in an attempt to understand the administration's policy goals.

In both the U.S. and Canada, jobs markets were steady, and the anticipated increase in inflation was not realized.

Canadian two-year bond yields rose 15 basis points (bps) as expectations for Bank of Canada interest-rate cuts fell. Five-year yields rose by a similar amount, while 10-year yields rose 34 bps and 30-year yields rose 37.5 bps. The Canadian federal government announced increased defence and infrastructure spending, some or all of which was expected to be deficit-financed.

In the U.S., two-year yields fell 16 bps as speculation of possible U.S. Federal Reserve Board interest-rate cuts increased. Five-year yields fell 13 bps, while 10-year yields rose 6 bps and 30-year yields rose 24 bps. The net effect was a narrowing of the wide spread between the Canadian and U.S. yield curves.

Performance

Relative exposure to Province of Quebec (2.3%, 2029/09/01) was negative for performance as provincial bonds underperformed because of rising yields.

At the sector level, overweight exposure to corporate bonds had a positive impact on the Fund's performance, particularly in financials. Exposure to provincial bonds had a negative impact on performance. As yields rose, provincial bonds fell, underperforming federal bonds.

Portfolio Activity

The sub-advisor added National Bank of Canada (floating-rate note, 2028/08/15) to the Fund based on its attractive yield and low interest-rate risk. Government of Canada (3.25%, 2028/09/01) was increased for its strong liquidity and low credit risk, and for its defensive characteristics amid macroeconomic uncertainty. (Defensive securities are generally less sensitive to changes in the economy.)

Canadian Western Bank (3.859%, 2025/04/21) was sold as it reached its maturity date.

Outlook

In the sub-advisor's view, investors seem largely unconcerned about the uncertainty around U.S. policy action and what it might mean for Canada. That may continue, but the sub-advisor anticipates some fragility in the market. It is not certain what trade deals could be announced, in the sub-advisor's view, and what effect they could have on the U.S. and Canadian economies.

At quarter end, U.S. tariffs on Canada exempted goods compliant with the United States-Mexico-Canada Agreement. This accounts for about 85% of the trade between the two countries.

Counsel Short Term Bond Series A

The sub-advisor believes it is likely that the Canadian and U.S. economies will continue to move in tandem. However, the sub-advisor also anticipates a convergence in bond yields between the two economies. Longer-term U.S. yields were close to 5% at quarter end. The sub-advisor will be watching to see if these move higher, as higher yields impact all riskier assets.

The sub-advisor is cautious about the valuation of corporate bonds given the uncertain tariff impact on the Canadian economy. The sub-advisor expects that high yield levels, positive funds flow and a lack of supply should keep credit spreads tight.
