Q1 2026 Fund Commentary

Commentary and opinions are provided by Marsico Capital Management, Mackenzie Financial Corporation, and Portfolio Solutions Group

Market Commentary

Global equities declined over the first quarter of 2026 and underperformed global bonds, which posted a small loss. (All returns are in Canadian-dollar terms on a total-return basis.) Global equities lost momentum as tensions in the Middle East escalated, causing economic uncertainty. The conflict largely closed off the Strait of Hormuz to oil shipments, which sent oil prices higher, raising concerns about inflation and whether central banks will need to lift interest rates this year.

The U.S. equity market declined, posting a low single-digit loss. The financials sector was the weakest-performing sector. Canadian equities increased and outperformed U.S. equities, getting robust performance from the energy sector. EAFE equities posted a small gain, underperforming Canadian equities but outperforming U.S. equities. Equities in the U.K. and Japan performed well. Emerging markets equities also gained and outperformed their developed market peers, with equities in Brazil and Mexico performing well.

The FTSE Canada Universe Bond Index posted a total return of 0.2% over the quarter. Government bond prices increased, while government yields edged higher. Government bonds outperformed corporate bonds, which posted a small gain. Corporate bond prices were hindered from widening credit spreads (the difference in yield between corporate and government bonds). Securitization bonds posted the largest increase in the corporate bond sector. High-yield bond prices rose on a total-return basis and outperformed investment-grade corporate bonds.

Global bond yields moved higher over the quarter, and global bond prices posted a small loss. The Bank of Canada, U.S. Federal Reserve Board, Bank of England, European Central Bank and Bank of Japan all held their policy interest rates steady over the quarter. The yield on 10-year Government of Canada bonds rose from 3.43% to 3.47%. Sovereign bond yields in the U.S., the U.K., Germany and Japan also increased.

Performance

The Fund's government bond exposure contributed to performance. The Fund's allocation to maturities across the Canadian yield curve also contributed during the quarter. Canada's economic outlook diverged from the U.S. as growth weakened and the labour market cooled, prompting markets to reassess the BoC's policy path. While Canadian yields moved higher, the Fund's curve positioning captured relative value opportunities during the period.

IPC Private Wealth Visio Balanced Growth Pool Series I

The Fund's corporate bond exposure detracted from performance. A holding in Royal Bank of Canada (4.00%, 2030/10/17) bonds detracted from performance during the quarter. Bonds within the financials sector underperformed the benchmark during the period, weighing on relative returns.

Strong stock selection in the information technology sector had the largest positive impact on the Fund's performance. Stock selection and an overweight allocation to the industrials sector also contributed. Stock selection in the financials sector contributed as well.

GE Vernova Inc. contributed to performance, supported by strong fourth-quarter 2025 results reported in late January 2026. The update underscored continued momentum across the company's power and electrification segments, driven by increasing demand for reliable electricity infrastructure. ASML Holding NV also contributed to performance as its share price strengthened on resilient demand for lithography systems, supported by ongoing investment from logic and memory customers. Taiwan Semiconductor Manufacturing Co. Ltd. contributed to performance as markets responded favourably to its latest earnings and outlook, with strong demand for cutting-edge microchips in high-performance computing and artificial intelligence (AI).

Weaker stock selection and minimal exposure to the health care sector detracted from performance. Zero exposure to the energy sector, the benchmark's strongest-performing sector, also detracted. An overweight allocation to the financials sector detracted as well.

Microsoft Corp. detracted from performance as its shares declined despite solid underlying execution. Market expectations around the pace and magnitude of AI monetization, coupled with ongoing elevated capital investment to expand infrastructure capacity, weighed on investor sentiment. Alphabet Inc. detracted as its shares lagged amid a more cautious view on the evolving digital advertising and search landscape. Meta Platforms Inc. was another detractor from performance as elevated spending expectations tied to AI infrastructure and long-term initiatives led to concerns around near-term margin pressure.

Portfolio Activity

The sub-advisor added to the Fund a holding in TransCanada PipeLines Ltd. (5.125%, 2056/08/20) bonds during the quarter, participating in the new issue. TransCanada PipeLines is a core Canadian energy infrastructure provider with a diversified portfolio of regulated and contracted pipeline assets. The addition reflects the sub-advisor's constructive view on the company's credit fundamentals and enhances the Fund's diversified exposure within the energy sector.

The sub-advisor increased the Fund's exposure to Hydro One Inc. (4.25%, 2035/01/04) bonds during the quarter because of the issuer's resilient fundamentals and favourable yield profile given its predictable, long-term contracted cash flows and stable credit metrics.

The sub-advisor sold the Fund's holding in Bank of Montreal (7.325%, 2082/11/26) limited recourse capital notes because of its long-dated structure and extension risk.

The sub-advisor added to the Fund a holding in The Coca-Cola Co., a high-quality consumer franchise with durable demand characteristics and strong global brand equity. The company benefits from a broad portfolio of beverage brands, a highly efficient distribution system and a capital-light model that supports consistent cash flow generation. The sub-advisor also added Johnson Controls International PLC as the company continues to reposition its portfolio toward higher-margin building technologies and services. McDonald's Corp. was added given its leading global quick-service restaurant platform and strong customer loyalty.

IPC Private Wealth Visio Balanced Growth Pool Series I

The sub-advisor increased the Fund's positions in Visa Inc., as the company's valuation became more compelling, Alphabet, as AI is driving incremental growth in search queries, and Netflix Inc., after clarity improved around the business following a decision not to pursue an acquisition.

The sub-advisor sold the Fund's holding in AppLovin Corp. after a reassessment of the company's long-term outlook because of increasing competitive pressure from larger platform providers deploying advanced AI-driven advertising tools. Intuitive Surgical Inc. was sold as the investment outlook became more balanced relative to other opportunities. Tesla Inc. was sold as the company's strategic pivot introduces elevated uncertainty around the durability of its earnings power and cash flow. The Walt Disney Co. was sold as the company's near-term outlook remains influenced by ongoing investment requirements and competitive dynamics.

Outlook

The first quarter of 2026 marked a transition in market leadership, with supply issues and geopolitical risks overtaking demand cycles as the primary drivers of volatility. Escalating tensions in the Middle East pushed oil prices sharply higher, reviving inflation concerns and increasing uncertainty around economic growth without yet showing clear evidence of economic deterioration. While headline volatility has eased at times, elevated implied volatility suggests markets are increasingly pricing a wider range of outcomes as global fragmentation, energy constraints and supply chokepoints weigh on investor confidence.

In this environment, the sub-advisor's focus remains on portfolio resilience. The sub-advisor continues to emphasize broad diversification across regions and return drivers, avoiding overreliance on a smooth disinflation or predictable easing path. Core exposure to structural growth themes such as artificial intelligence remains important, but the sub-advisor is mindful of rising concentration risk and greater macro sensitivity in earnings expectations.

Within portfolios, alternatives, including managed futures, volatility strategies and risk parity, play a growing role in navigating shifting correlations. Fixed income remains a useful stabilizer, although less reliable than in past cycles, reinforcing the need for broader sources of diversification and liquidity as buffers against episodic shocks.
